

Richmond American Expands Solar Offerings to All Regions

Homebuyers from coast to coast can now choose more sustainable solutions

DENVER, Jan. 4, 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- M.D.C. Holdings, Inc. (NYSE: MDC), parent company to the Richmond American Homes companies, is pleased to announce that solar options are now available in all regions in which Richmond American builds.

The Richmond American Homes companies have offered solar power systems to customers in California since 2012. Now, the leading national homebuilder is taking its commitment to sustainability to the next level by providing solar options at communities from coast to coast.

In addition, Richmond American will be introducing an even greater host of standard and optional features that help reduce energy usage without sacrificing functionality. These include even more efficient HVAC solutions (up to 16 SEER air conditioning and variable speed mid- or high-efficiency furnaces), high-efficiency MERV 13 air filters, high-efficiency tankless water heaters, Low-E windows and radiant roof barriers. The builder also now offers electric vehicle charging prewiring in all markets.

Richmond American homebuyers seeking solar capability can choose from the following solutions:

- Install a solar power system through one of our preferred vendors
- Install a concealed conduit for a future solar power system

As of June 2021, the Richmond American Homes companies closed on 5,682 homes with solar panels in California and Colorado, saving 79,476 tons in CO² emissions and producing 32,882,271 kilowatt hours of renewable energy annually. The builder is now ready to help those in other states reduce their carbon footprints.

"We're always looking for ways to reduce energy usage and waste and promote a healthy environment, and we have seen great success with solar power systems in California and Colorado. So, offering solar solutions in all regions in which we build was a natural next step," said Andrew Harris, Senior Vice President of Richmond American Homes Corporation.

Solar options are not available at the builder's Cityscape™ communities.
