

Richmond American Enters Albuquerque Housing Market

Builder eyes multiple locations in Rio Rancho

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., April 26, 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- Richmond American Homes of New Mexico, Inc., a subsidiary of M.D.C. Holdings, Inc. (NYSE: MDC), has announced plans to build multiple new communities in the Albuquerque area (RichmondAmerican.com/Albuquerque). The homebuilder's expansion in this market will provide local house hunters access to a broader range of home personalization options than many other builders offer.

"Albuquerque homebuyers are going to love our wide selection of design options," said David Viger, Richmond American Homes' Chief Operating Officer. "We believe that everyone who builds a new home from the ground up should have the freedom to choose their finishes and design a home that's as unique as they are. It's why we say, 'with us it's personal.'"

Richmond American recently closed on its first community, Monarch at Mariposa in Rio Rancho, which is scheduled to open by the end of the year. The builder is also poised to close on a second Rio Rancho community, Seasons at Broadmoor Heights (RichmondAmerican.com/BroadmoorHeights), in May and sales are slated to commence in June. Both communities will offer Richmond American's sought-after Seasons™ Collection, designed to make homeownership more attainable for a wide range of buyers.
